【A】Taiwan's Tree King

Lai, Bei-Yuan is known as Taiwan's Tree King. Over thirty years ago he left his family's successful shipping business and began buying large areas of land in the mountains of Dasyueshan in Taichung. And on this land he planted trees—over a quarter of 1,000,000 of them!

But what made Lai decide to spend over NT$2,000,000,000 buying land to plant trees? Lai says that the customers he used to serve as part of his day job were all in business that polluted the earth. He felt he needed to do something to restore the earth's life energy.

The trees Lai plants are all types that can grow for 1000 years or more! They help hold the soil together and keep the water flowing through the earth.

Some of these trees produce very expensive wood. But Lai has a policy of not allowing anyone to cut down his trees, even though he can make a pot of money from it.

As long as the Tree King is around, his forest will be safe.

* customers 顧客 pollute 污染 produce 製造

 (A) Buy up. (B) Cut down.
 (C) Bring back. (D) Take away.

() 31. Who or what are “they”?

(A) Business.

(B) Trees.

(C) Customers.

(D) Lai and his family.

【B】EMP Museum

I’ve visited many different museums for my arts column, but none of them was more fun than EMP in downtown Seattle. For one thing, there’s the building’s unique exterior. How could someone not love the look? There’s a train track running through the middle of the building. It looks like a train station on the moon!

It’s not only the exterior that stands out, but also the exhibits inside. They help to make the EMP Museum truly one of a kind. Most museums focus on the past, but EMP looks at the present. Exhibits cover different aspects of popular culture like music, movies, sports, and even video games. My favorite exhibit was Seattle Seahawks and the Road to Victory. It really gave me a behind-the-scenes look at Seattle’s football team.

Perhaps the EMP Museum is so unique because of the colorful people behind it. It was founded by Microsoft’s Paul Allen in 2000, and designed by Frank Gehry, a famous Canadian architect. Just visit EMP and you’ll see that their hard work has really paid off.

* column 專欄 exterior 外觀 track 軌道 exhibits 展覽 unique 獨特的 architect 建築師

() 32. Which of the following is NOT true about EMP?

(A) It has a train track going through it.

(B) It was designed and built by Paul Allen.

(C) It focuses on the present, popular culture.

(D) It has exhibits on computer games.

() 33. Which of the following would the writer not do a column on?

(A) A football game.

(B) A fine art show.

(C) A new theater.

(D) A music show.

() 34. What is “it”?

(A) The EMP exterior.

(B) A movie about Seattle.

(C) The Seahawks exhibit.

(D) The popular culture exhibit.

【C】London Supermarket Fights to Save The Planet

A UK supermarket is making shopping greener. Thornton’s Budgens in London has made the country’s first plastic-free space. In just ten weeks, the store stopped using plastic packaging in over 1700 products. Now, they use things like paper or glass to pack food. These are better for the planet.

Owner Andrew Thornton says the change is important. Most plastic packaging can’t be recycled, so it is often thrown into the sea. There, it kills many sea animals and poison the water. Once, Thornton cut his foot at the beach. The water was so polluted that he got a serious infection. In the end, he had to go to the hospital. “That’s my story,” he said. “We can’t keep throwing our trash in the sea.”

* plastic 塑膠 packaging 包裝 product 產品 recycle 回收 poison 毒害 infection 感染

() 35. What is this passage mainly about?

* mainly 主要

- (A) A new supermarket that just opened in London.
- (B) A time that Andrew Thornton got an infection at the beach.
- (C) Some problems with supermarkets that use plastic packaging.
- (D) Something that an English store is doing to help the earth.

() 36. Which of these is a big problem with plastic?

- (A) It's hard to recycle it.
- (B) It's not as cheap as paper and glass.
- (C) There are too many plastic-free spaces.
- (D) It is sharp and people cut themselves on it.

() 37. When did Andrew Thornton decide he needed to do something about plastic garbage?

- (A) Ten weeks after he opened his store.
- (B) After he saw plastic packaging kill some sea animals.
- (C) Before he opened his first supermarket abroad.
- (D) When some pollution made him sick.

【D】 Bullies Can't Hide from Instagram's New AI

With over a billion users, Instagram is one of the most popular apps in the world. Sadly, some people on Instagram use it to bully others with cruel words and pictures. Instagram now is using artificial intelligence (AI) software to deal with this problem. The AI searches out and flags mean posts on its platform.

Instagram already has a feature that blocks bullying in the text under photos. The new AI looks at photos alone for mean words and offensive pictures, like photos that compare a person to something ugly. It then sends these posts to a human worker. The worker can choose to approve or reject them.

Instagram users can also help stop bullying. They can use the new feature in the settings to hide offensive comments. Instagram hope these new features will make the app a friendlier place.

* artificial intelligence(AI) 人工智慧 flag 標註 offensive 令人難堪的 compare to 將…比做 comments 評論

() 38. What was Instagram already doing to stop bullying?

- (A) It was counting cruel words in photos.
- (B) It was hiding mean comments from users.
- (C) It was looking for mean words under photos.
- (D) It was using AI to mark posts as not OK.

() 39. What does the new AI on Instagram do differently?

- (A) It can look your old posts on Instagram.
- (B) It can mark posts as OK or not OK to see.
- (C) It doesn't ask a person to help take down posts.
- (D) It looks at photos, not text, to find mean words.

- () 40. Why might an AI need a human worker's help?
- (A) The AI can't read the words in the photos.
 - (B) A human can make a smarter final decision.
 - (C) Users don't want an AI to run Instagram
 - (D) The AI can only find words, not pictures.

【E】 Yellow Fever in Brazil

Brazil is under attack. From July 2017 to April 2018, yellow fever took the lives of more than 300 of its people. Sixteen of them died in 2017 in Sao~ Paulo, the biggest city in Brazil, but that number went up to over 50 in the first week of January in 2018. However, the problem is not slowing down and more people died.

Yellow fever is common in South America. The disease is carried by mosquitoes and is passed from sick monkeys and people to healthy monkeys and people through their bites. It can be treated with a vaccine, but there's not enough of it to go around.

In January, millions of worried Brazilians that wanted the vaccine lined up for hours outside hospitals. However, many of them were turned away when the vaccine ran out. Then, the Brazilian government set up a plan to get the vaccine for 24,000,000 people. A few will be given a full dose, but most will get a partial one. The first lasts a lifetime, and the second is good for at least 12 months.

The government is confident that it can get the vaccine to those millions of people in two months. It also believes things are going to get better. Even so, Brazilians are still worried. As you can see, those in power still have a lot to do.

* Sao~ Paulo 聖保羅 disease 疾病 mosquito 蚊子 vaccine 疫苗 Brazilian 巴西人 dose 藥劑 partial 部分的；不完全的

 - (D) Sylvia is so shy that she can't talk in front of many people.
- () 42. What do we NOT learn about yellow fever from the reading?
- (A) It is easily found in South America.
 - (B) Mosquitoes are carriers of the disease.
 - (C) People pass it to others by biting them.
 - (D) There's a vaccine to treat the disease.
- () 43. What can we know from the reading?
- (A) Brazilians can get the yellow fever vaccine for free.
 - (B) Both the full and partial vaccines work for at least one year.
 - (C) Most Brazilians believe the government did a good job of stopping the problem.
 - (D) The government has finished giving millions of Brazilians the vaccine.

【F】 Meet the Girl Who Wants to Go to Mars

Alyssa Carson is a 18-year-old from Louisiana, US. Like many teenagers, she's already think about her future career. Most kids aren't making plans like hers, though. Alyssa wants to be the first person to fly to Mars.

At age 12, Alyssa became the first person ever to go to all three NASA space camps. Since she's not 18, she can't officially apply to be a NASA astronaut yet. However, she is doing most of her training in Project PoSSUM, a citizen science program. She's learning to fly planes and doing underwater training.

NASA expects to launch its Mars mission in 2033. By then, Alyssa will be 32. If she goes, Alyssa wants to take water samples and check for signs of life.
