To All Band Members,

The school's annual parade will be upon us soon. As part of our preparations, there will be more practices these next two weeks. We'll be working on all the pieces as well as getting ourselves familiar with the parade route.

This year, we'll be starting at the park to the east of our school. We'll gather and get into formation on the north side of the park on Park Road. At nine o'clock on the big day, we'll make our way west down Park Road to Third Street. After turning left, we'll pass the hospital and McDonald's before making another left turn on Station Road. Once on Fourth Street, we'll make a right turn on River Road before finishing up on the south side of the park.

Let's make this the best parade ever!

John: Why are you looking at a map of Taiwan? Are you planning a trip somewhere?

Alice: Yes. Two of my husband's friends are coming from Holland on business this week. I want to take them somewhere special, but I'm having a hard time deciding.

John: How about Sun Moon Lake? They will love the scenery there.

Alice: I took them there the last time they were here.

John: How about Yangming Mountain? The hot springs there are famous.

Alice: It's a little far and would take us the whole morning to drive there from Kaohsiung.

John: If you take the High Speed Rail, you can get to Taipei in less than two hours. Once there, you can show them around the city and then have delicious snacks at Shilin Night Market.

Alice: I don't think I need to take them all the way to Taipei for snack food. There is already plenty of food available here.

John: That's true. Well, then, you got me.

Alice: Thanks for your suggestions, but I'll figure out something for us to do.

29. Why is Alice looking at a map of Taiwan?
(A) She's planning a trip abroad for her family.
(B) She's considering places to take her foreign friends.
(C) She's checking out the path of the High Speed Rail.
(D) She's measuring the distance from Kaohsiung to Taipei.
30. What is true about Alice's guests?
(A) They have never been to Sun Moon Lake.
(B) They will be staying at her house in Kaohsiung.
(C) They have traveled to Taiwan before.
(D) They told her they would like to see Yangming Mountain.
31. What does you got me mean?
(A) He's there for her.
(B) He's got to go now.
(C) He's out of ideas.
(D) He's in lots of trouble.

Six people have answered a survey about banning people from smoking on the streets.

- Laura: I think it's a smart move on the city's part if they actually make it into a law. It's not fair that I have to breathe in secondhand smoke when I'm out walking.
- Nathan: That's silly! If smokers can't smoke on the streets, where are they going to go? They have already been kicked out of public spaces like bars and restaurants.
- Priscilla: I think it's a good idea, but the city will have a hard time enforcing it. What are they going to do — arrest all the smokers standing on the street outside a bar?
- Harry: It's about time! I hate having to walk through a cloud of smoke just to get on the bus. Don't those people know they are polluting the air for all of us who don't smoke?
- Bianca: Don't make me laugh. If the city is going to ban smoking on the streets, they might as well ban all the cars, too. Most of them put out more harmful fumes than smokers.
- Grant: I'm not sure how I feel about this. On one hand, the city is trying to protect the general public, but on the other, they are also discriminating against a number of them.

📖 survey 民意調查；調查 ban 禁止 enforce 執行 fume (有害的) 煙

32. What do we learn about the six people surveyed?
(A) Everyone hates the proposed ban.
(B) Half of them like the idea.
(C) None of them think the plan will work.
(D) Only one person feels banning is the way to go.

33. Which of the following would be closest in meaning to don't make me laugh?
- (A) You've got to be joking.
 - (B) I don't like laughing.
 - (C) Stop bothering me.
 - (D) Don't make me hurt you.
34. What is NOT mentioned about smoking?
- (A) Its fumes are not as harmful as what some cars produce.
 - (B) It pollutes the air for non-smokers.
 - (C) It is already banned in bars and restaurants.
 - (D) Many people have been arrested because of it.

Antarctica is the southernmost continent on the planet, and its name comes from a Greek word meaning opposite to the north. Surrounded by the Southern Ocean, it is home to the South Pole, is almost twice the size of Australia, and experiences months of complete daylight as well as darkness. Most of Antarctica is covered by a sheet of ice that averages about two kilometers in thickness, which also makes up around 90% of the world's ice. To put it simply, that's about 70% of the Earth's supply of fresh water. What's more, if it were to melt, it would raise sea levels by 60 meters.

Unlike the other continents, Antarctica is the coldest, driest, and windiest place on Earth. In 1983, it was recorded as having the coldest temperature in history, -89.2 degrees Celsius, and its average yearly temperature is -49.5 degrees Celsius. Since the continent experiences very little rainfall, only 10 centimeters each year, it is considered a desert.

While humans don't live in Antarctica permanently, other animal species do. These include blue whales, fur seals, krill, and several types of penguins.

📖 Antarctica 南極洲 continent 大洲 permanently 永久地

35. What does it mean in the reading?
- (A) The snow falling on Antarctica.
 - (B) The fresh water.
 - (C) All the ice in Antarctica.
 - (D) The ice in Australia.
36. How is Antarctica NOT like the other continents?
- (A) It is the only desert in the northern part of the planet.
 - (B) It is causing sea levels to rise 60 meters every year.
 - (C) It is the only place that has 24 hours of daylight and darkness.
 - (D) It has the strongest winds, lowest temperatures, and least rainfall.
37. What do we learn from this reading?
- (A) Nobody lives in Antarctica all year round.
 - (B) Antarctica is the place to hunt whales.
 - (C) Antarctica was not found until 1983.
 - (D) Antarctica provides 70% of the world's drinking water.

By 2025, Copenhagen, Denmark wants to be carbon neutral, which means it will stop adding extra CO₂ into the air.

How do they plan to do this? To start, the city is doing things like trading in its old buses for new electric ones. Today, just over half of their buses are electric, but in five years, all of them should be. Since 27% of people there use public transportation, this will help a lot.

Bikes are another important part of Copenhagen's plan. The government has even built special roads for them. It is the best place to bike in the world right now. Hundreds of thousands of people in the city bike to work or school every day. More people there actually use bikes rather than cars or public transportation.

There is one thing that has been difficult for Copenhagen. While only 25% of people use cars in the city, the amount of nitrogen oxides, carbon monoxide, and other pollutants these cars have produced still result in a very large amount of air pollution. So the government has been helping these people buy electric cars. They are also spending a lot of money on clean energy that releases less or no CO₂ to power these cars. Even with that, however, only 20% of cars in Copenhagen are electric.

Still, if Copenhagen meets all of its goals, it will be the first major city to be carbon neutral. For the health of our planet, let's hope it can.

📖 trade in 以舊換新 Carbon Neutral 碳中和 nitrogen oxides 氮氧化物 carbon monoxide 一氧化碳

38. What would be a good title for this reading?

- (A) The Best City to Bike.
- (B) Denmark's Electric Car Problem.
- (C) Copenhagen: The Cleanest City in Europe.
- (D) Copenhagen's Race to Become Carbon Neutral.

39. Why has the city spent a lot of money on clean energy?

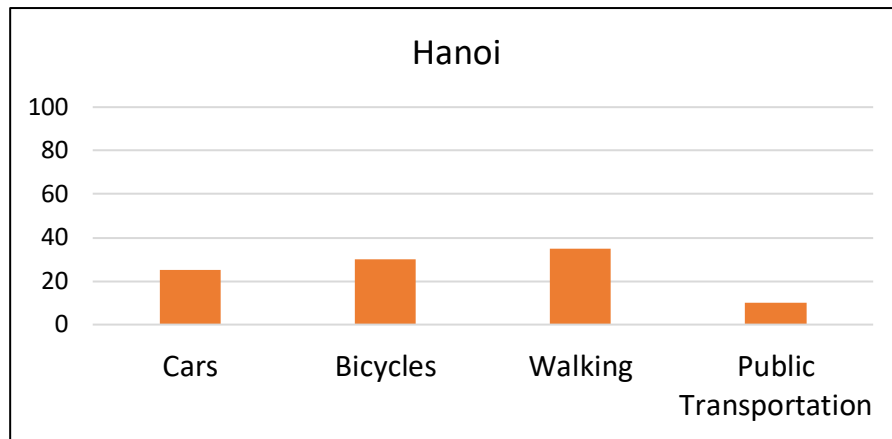

- (A) Because it wants people to use their cars more.
- (B) Because it wants to be a carbon-neutral city.
- (C) Because it thinks it can save energy in the future.
- (D) Because it can't power its electric buses right now.

40. The four graphs show how people get around in different cities. Which city is like Copenhagen the most?

If only I lived closer, I'd come home all of the time.
I could just drive over and wouldn't have to fly.
There'd be no trips across the world to see the three of you.
It's OK, because December is coming soon.
Next week, I'll buy my ticket and prepare to go back home.
I'm happy that this year I won't be spending Christmas all alone.
Instead, I'll get to sit around the table with you, Mom, and Dad
Sharing memories about all the great times we've had.
Families that love each other are happier by far
Than those who never see each other and always are apart.
Maybe we seldom get together, but I know that when we do,
You'll be happy to see me, and I'll be happy to see you.

41. From the poem, what can we learn about the writer?

- (A) The writer lives with their parents.
- (B) The writer has a brother or a sister.
- (C) The writer flies back home every December.
- (D) The writer just moved to a different country.

42. Tom, Lindsay, David, and Sharon are close friends. Below they talk about each other. Who's probably the writer of the poem?

(A)

Most of us met at a language exchange in Kaohsiung. I'm the only local. It's good, though. I've learned so much from them.

Tom

(B)

As an only child, I have always wanted brothers and sisters. Now I feel like I do with these friends.

Sharon

(C)

I became friends with Tom, David, and Sharon not long ago. I am glad that I met them. They've made my moving here in Taipei much easier.

Lindsay

(D)

This group of friends feels like a second family. Because of them, I miss home a bit less. They've made my life here happier.

Perry Sydney

Yesterday at 2:55 a.m.

So I have a story to tell. Please don't laugh! Last night, my son asked me, "Daddy, why do you have so many gray hairs?" I told him, "Well, every time you do something naughty, I would get a few gray hairs." My son thought for a moment and said, "Oh, that makes sense. Now I know why grandpa's hairs are all gray!"

Fiona Benson That is too funny! Sometimes kids say such funny things. Did you tell him the real reason why you have gray hairs? I think if my daughter said that, I might get mad!

Although hunting for whales was banned in 1966 by the International Whaling Commission (IWC), countries like Japan and Norway continue to do so. To avoid the rules, these countries kill whales for scientific purposes. This is something that the IWC allows. In fact, the meat is still sold and eaten in these countries.

Even with the rules, only some whales are doing better. The larger kinds of whales are still having a difficult time. Over the past 150 years, the number of blue whales has declined by 70–90%. Today, there are less than 25,000 left. Hunters and pollution are equally responsible for decreasing the number of blue whales. Because of this, we continue to lose more of them every year.

If these whales disappear, it would be a big loss for the planet. Whales are not only marvelous animals but also reportedly able to help fight against climate change. In fact, saving whales may be even more helpful than planting trees.

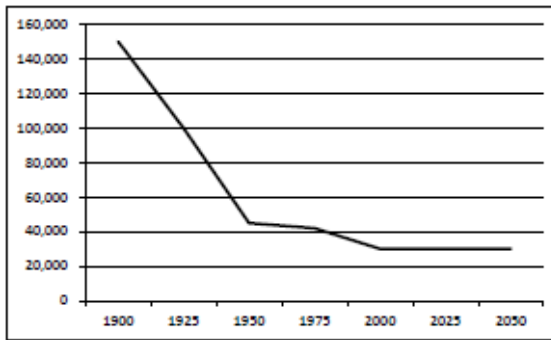

Help save these intelligent animals. Sign now to get the IWC to improve the rules. If we don't do something now, it may be too late.

45. What is the purpose of this reading?
- (A) Getting support to ask the IWC to change its rules.
 - (B) Asking one country's government to stop hunting whales.
 - (C) Saving the blue whale from disappearing in the next five years.
 - (D) Telling people about how several kinds of whales have disappeared.
46. Below are some facts from a report about whales. Which is NOT talked about in the reading?
- (A) The blue whales are known as the largest living things to ever live.
 - (B) The IWC allows whales to be killed if it is for science.
 - (C) Pollution in the ocean is killing almost as many whales as hunting is.
 - (D) Whales can help fight against climate change.

47. If the number of blue whales continues to decline, what would the chart look like?

Hey! Have you seen the new Hara Watts movie? It looks really good.

Dana10:35

I didn't even know he had directed another movie. What is it about?

Kevin10:36

It's hard to explain. The movie is about a boy who loses his mom and runs away. His dad then needs to go find him in the forest.

Dana10:37

It sounds like it's pretty sad. Doesn't Hara Watts usually make funny movies?

Kevin10:40

It is a comedy. I'm just not explaining it right. Watch the trailer on YouTube.

Dana10:45

I couldn't stop laughing! Let's go. I think I've got two free tickets we could use. Do you have a day in mind?

Kevin10:46

How about we go on Thursday afternoon, Friday night, or Saturday during the day?

Dana10:47

Any of those times works for me. Let me share one of the free tickets with you now. Be sure to bring it with you to the theater.
