Chip: Hey, Dina. What are you typing?

Dina: It's a paper for my biology course.

Chip: You went back to school?

Dina: Actually, it's an online course.

Chip: Online? Don't you find it lonely not being able to meet classmates?

Dina: Yes, sometimes. But the school is in America and I'm busy with my job, so it's the best pick for me.

Chip: Oh, you're a foreign student. Which school are you with?

Dina: MIT.

Chip: Wow. That's one of the best colleges in America! Tell me more about online education!

Dina: I can watch video lessons of other MIT courses for free.

Chip: That's great! It sounds like you're gaining a lot from this online course.

Dina: Yeah, I can study whenever I want. So it doesn't matter if I'm feeling tired. I can simply take a break to do something relaxing and continue later. I've already covered a lot of ground in biology and other subjects by taking online courses.

Chip: I know what you mean. Often, you might be feeling lazy but you still have to make the effort to go to class. But with online learning, you can catch up anytime.

Dina: Exactly.

六、閱讀測驗：(35-48 題，每題 2 分，共 28%)

(35-36)

Do you feel green with envy, or get so angry when you see red? Colors play a very important role in our lives. Let's take a look at the meanings of colors in different countries.

- Blue — Blue is the safest color in the world. In North America, blue represents trust, but it can also represent sadness.
- Green — In Western culture, green represents luck, nature and spring. In Eastern culture, green means new life. But in China, wearing green hats is taboo for men because it means that their wives cheated on them.
- Red — Red means energy, love and action. In Eastern culture, red is an important color. It represents good luck, joy and a long life. Brides often wear red on their wedding days, and people enjoy giving out red envelopes on special holidays. However, it's taboo to wear red clothes when you join the funeral.
- White — In Western culture, white represents peace. Brides often wear white dresses at their weddings. But in China, Korea and Taiwan, white represents death and bad luck.
- Black — In many countries, black represents death, magic, and bad luck.

 envy 忌妒 represent 代表 trust 信任 cheat 欺騙 bride 新娘 funeral 喪禮

35. Which sentence uses the word taboo correctly?

- (A) It is taboo to wear blue shirts when you work.

(40-41)

"Are you coming here just to teach us to wash our hands with soap?" "If we use soap, can we wash our hands without water?" These two questions may sound funny to us, but they are showing a serious problem in India.

Yoshoda lives in an old house in a small town with her husband and four children. Their house doesn't have piped water. She can't get water from the wells or rivers in the town because most water from these places is unsafe to drink or they don't even have any water in the dry season. Yoshoda has to wait for the trucks from the government to send her potable water every two days. Sometimes, no trucks would come for weeks, so she has to go somewhere else to collect clean and safe water for her family to drink. Yoshoda is not alone. Around 60% of families in the cities and over 80% outside the cities in India face the same problem.

Many studies show: for our health, we should wash our hands with soap to kill germs after using the bathroom or touching anything in public spaces. For each wash, we need to use about 2 liters of water. Then, would those people, like Yoshoda, in India even care about staying clean by washing hands with soap when water is so valuable for them?

[麻辣講義 P. 232]

40. According to the reading, what is the problem in India?

- (A) The government doesn't teach its people to use soap.
- (B) No one has the habit of keeping his or her hands clean.
- (C) Few of the old houses have soap.
- (D) A lot of people do not have enough clean water to use.

41. What can we learn from the reading?

- (A) Though washing hands is important for staying healthy, people in India just don't want to do it.
- (B) In India, fewer people outside the cities can get water straight in the houses than people inside the cities.
- (C) All of the rivers in India have no water in the dry season.
- (D) In many towns in India, people can only get fresh water once a week.

(42-43)

One man's trash is another man's treasure. This is true as we can see from Arthur Huang who started a Taiwan company that is collecting all kinds of waste, such as plastic bottles, old clothes, and even cigarette butts. He turned all the waste into whole brand-new objects. For example, he made iPhone covers from rice husk and sunglasses from recycled CDs. What's more, in 2010, he even turned 1.5 million recycled plastic bottles into a beautiful green building in Taipei. There is nothing that he cannot make out of our recycled things.

Arthur started his business because he realized recycling is fake when a student asked him if he knew what was happening in recycling plants. All the recycled waste is not being fully re-used but flooding our recycle plants every day. Therefore, he decided to face the problem and put all his effort to make a green living.

Arthur said, "What I'm doing right now is not just recycling but 'upcycling,' which means making unwanted wastes into new valuable things." By treating such waste in the right way, we could solve the half problem of trash.

 treasure 寶藏 cigarette butt 煙蒂 rice husk 稻穀 recycled 回收的 fake 假的 recycle plant 回收廠 flood 淹沒 valuable 有價值的

42. What is the best title (標題) for the reading?

- (A) Give a new life to recycled waste.
- (B) How to solve the problem of trash.
- (C) Our life is flooded by waste.
- (D) What kind of recycled waste can be re-used.

43. What is the writer's position (立場)?

- (A) He / She doesn't agree with Arthur's idea.
(C) He / She is neutral (中立的).

- (B) He / She agrees with Arthur's idea.
(D) We don't know.

Manson, a fifty-year-old man, who is between jobs, walks with his head down along the country road. He has no idea where his future lies. If he does not find a job soon enough, he is going to lose his car and even his house.

Suddenly, he sees a paper bag on the side of the road. After picking it up, he is surprised to find that there is a lot of money in it, NT$500,000 in total. He looks around and sees no one else nearby. He thinks to himself, "What a blissful day! This bag of money is going to save me life!" However, a minute later, what his mother used to say comes to his mind: "Always do the right thing, son. Never ever take anything that isn't yours." Then and there, he feels ashamed of himself. He understands what he should do.

Manson walks into the police station and hands the money to the police. That night, he gets a call from a stranger, Mrs. Williams, who calls to thank him for what he has done. Manson says he is glad that she gets her money back.

The following day, three newspapers report Manson's story. Then five businesses ask him to work for them. Andrew Smith, the owner of AAA Computer Store, says his store needs a good worker like Manson.

Manson is happy. He looks up at the sky and says, "Mom, you're right again! Thank you."
